1. INTRODUCTION (Attention getter + Background + Purpose)

Write 1 killer first sentence here:

Why should Malaysian coffee lovers sacrifice their health or sleep just because decaffeinated options are hard to find?

Background + Purpose (3–4 sentences):

Malaysia's café culture continues to grow rapidly, with brands like Zus Coffee and Kenangan Coffee leading the trend. However, decaffeinated coffee remains rare because most decaf beans are imported, expensive, and difficult for cafés to source consistently. This leaves caffeine-sensitive consumers like those wanting better sleep or avoiding reflux with very few suitable choices. Caffeine-Lite Coffee aims to provide a sustainable, locally sourced supply of decaffeinated beans, enabling cafés to offer healthier, inclusive beverage options.

2. PROBLEM (MUST HAVE 2 NUMBERS!)

The big problem is Malaysians have extremely limited access to decaffeinated coffee despite strong and growing demand.

Number 1: Some Malaysians experience caffeine-related sensitivity such as deprivation of sleep or digestive discomfort.

Number 2: Malaysia imports most of its decaffeinated beans, making the product costly and rarely available in cafés.

3. SOLUTION (What is your brand? How does it fix the problem?)

Caffeine-Lite Coffee is a local sourcing and supply initiative that provides Malaysian cafés with high-quality, affordable decaffeinated coffee beans. The brand reduces café dependency on expensive imported decaf beans by developing partnerships with regional suppliers and local roasters. This ensures cafés like Zus and Kenangan Coffee can offer consistent, flavourful decaf beverages that serve to health-conscious and caffeine-sensitive customers. By improving availability and lowering costs, Caffeine-Lite Coffee opens a new market segment and enhances the overall inclusivity of Malaysia's coffee industry.
